"The Storage & Terminal Operators Conference & Expo "

The internationally recognised event provides a meeting place for 3,700+ terminals, ports, regulators, financiers, renewable fuel suppliers and oil, gas & petrochemical producers. Once a year the industry comes together to learn new approaches to improve storage operations, gain new business and seek out innovative solutions to make their storage infrastructure safer, more sustainable and more efficient.

In partnership with the Federation of European Tank Storage Associations (FETSA), StocExpo brings you over a range of expert speakers including Bowen Xu, Director of Corporate Development & Investments at OCI, Tamme Wekkes, Business Development Director for Koole Terminals, Aivars Starikovs, Member of the Board for European Hydrogen Council and Bruni Hayem, CEO of Rubis Terminal.

Topics covered include tackling the energy trilemma, what the energy transition looks like in Asia and the Middle East and the impact of the evolving geopolitical landscape on the storage sector. A second conference theatre geared towards asset and maintenance managers will feature engaging speakers covering a variety of topics including safety best practices, digitisation and future-proofing your terminal. If you're involved in the storage or transportation of fuels you'll want to attend StocExpo 2024.
