"Australia's only dedicated exhibition for the bulk solids handling industry"

The Australian Bulk Handling Expo (BULK) will return to Melbourne in September 2024, connecting people to people and business to business, while showcasing solutions that will help the bulk solids handling industry move their products to where they are needed most – both domestically and internationally.

The event will feature an expansive trade show, showcasing the latest solutions for the industry, as well as hosting an informative two-day conference discussing how businesses can take the next step to remain cutting-edge in a constantly changing world.
