Nestle invest USD 115 million in the Expansion of a Cat Litter Plant in Bloomfield (MO), USA

Bearbeitet von am 22. Feb. 2019

Nestlé Purina announced the expansion of its Bloomfield factory in Southeast Missouri where Tidy Cats brand cat litter is made. The expansion represents a USD 115 million investment that will allow Purina to meet a growing demand from cat owners.

Purina's expansion will add a 110,000 ft² processing and packaging facility in Bloomfield, Missouri.

Purina employs more than 3500 people in Missouri and has had a longstanding presence in Bloomfield since 1976. The 500,000 ft² (approx. 46,000 m²) factory in Bloomfield currently employs more than 340 people in the Southeast Missouri region. The expansion will add a 110,000 ft² (approx. 10,000 m²) processing and packaging facility and lead to total job growth of approx. 30 positions by mid-2020. Purina's expansion in Bloomfield is one example of how the company is making investments to grow the business and advance pet care. In 2018, Purina invested USD 475 million into its factories across the U. S. for projects that help grow and sustain the business, including USD 180 million in Missouri operations alone. In Missouri, Purina also has a presence in Springfield, St. Joseph and St. Louis, where the company has been headquartered for 125 years.
