Regensdorf, Switzerland -

Gericke have announced that 30 years after joining the Gericke group of companies, and adding its rotary valves as an integral product to the group's portfolio of powder handling solutions, UK based Rota Val Ltd. are now continuing the journey of integration by changing the name to Gericke Rotaval Ltd.

The Gericke group of companies gives Gericke RotaVal worldwide reach in providing customers with tailored solutions and product support. As well as the ability to drive improvement in the company's product portfolio for all customers by working and learning from the system solutions and expertise the Gericke group provides.

RotaVal rotary valves play an integral part in the efficiency and safety of a powder handling process. Thanks to their highly modular design, Gericke RotaVal valves can be adapted for virtually all types of product characteristics and applications, from heavy duty to highest hygienic standards. With its own development and production, Gericke RotaVal can react quickly to new needs, and the well-known quality can be guaranteed throughout.

Gericke is not only a rotary valve manufacturer. Gericke is a technology leading supplier of powder processing machines and systems, used in many food, chemical, pharmaceutical and raw material industries.
